Olivier Couraud

Olivier has an extensive 23+ year career in the food industry, starting in a quality department before taking on roles such as Food Safety Auditor/Consultant, and Hygienic Design Engineer for 18 years at GSF, a cleaning company.

Today, Olivier works for Commercial Food Sanitation, an Intralox company, as a Food Safety Specialist, providing strategic consulting services and training on food hygiene and hygienic design to the food industry in Europe, Middle East, and Africa.

Over the course of his career, he gained expertise in cleaning, disinfection, food safety, and hygienic design. Olivier has supported over 150 plants across various food sectors as well as packaging suppliers. This comprehensive experience enables him to offer integrated solutions to a wide range of food safety challenges.

He holds a master's degree in agri-food engineering from ESIAB Quimper, France, and has patented a cleaning method for allergen removal.

Olivier is actively involved in the EHEDG. He serves as the administrator for EHEDG France, actively participates in various working groups, and chairs the Meat Processing Working Group.
